THANKSGIVING.

We meet again in gladness,
And thankful voices raise;
To God, our heavenly Father, We'll tune our grateful praise 'Tis his kind hand that kept us, Through all the changing year; His love it is that brings us Again to worship here.

We'll thank him for the Sabbath, This day of holy rest; And for the blessed Bible, The book that we love best; For Sabbath-schools and teachers, To us so kindly given, To guide us in the pathway That leads to joys in Heaven.

We'll thank him for our country, The land our fathers trod; For liberty of conscience, And right to worship God. O Lord, our heavenly Father, Accept the praise we bring, And tune our hearts and voices Thy glorious name to sing.

Soon may thy gracious scepter Extend to every land, And all as willing subjects Submit to thy command. Send forth the gospel tidings, And hasten on the day When every isle and nation Shall own Messiah's sway

THE HAUNTED BED. BY MARK LEMON.

'Why, Betty, if there isn't Mr. Ponsonby at the door with his baggage, I'll be whipped !' cried the head waiter at thehotel, on the evening preceding the regatta.

'Mr. Ponsonby, you don't say so! and 'd given him up, and just put that weakminded gent as come at ten o'clock in Fortyand there's not a bed to be had in Cowes for love or money.'

'What's that you say, Betty ?' said the new comer; 'not another bed but mine, eh? 'That it, sir,' replied Betty; 'I kept it for you till the last train; now as that has been in a hour, I gave you up, sir. What

'That's the gent that's got your room,' whispered John, as he ushered Mr. Personby into the coffee-room.

The person alluded to was a very mild, milky-looking young gentleman of twentyone. His present position was evidently a new one, for he was constantly employed in pulling up his shirt collar and using his

'John,' said Ponsonby, 'I must have a bed. Bring me a broiled bone and a glass of brandy and water, and put them on the table next to the young gentleman, whilst I speak to Betty.'

What the nature of Mr. Ponsonby's communication to Betty was I don't mean to reveal; but she laughed consumely, and was shortly afterwards soon entering No. Forty-two with a warming-pan, and then eturning without it.

The bone and brandy and water were duly served, and Mr. Ponsonby took his place at the table. The mild gentleman pulled his collar more frequently and plied the toothpick with increased energy.

'No. Forty-two! gasped the mild one; that's my room !

'Hosh, for Heaven's sake !' said Ponsonby; 'had I known that, I wouldn't have said a word for the world.'

'My dear sir, don't say that; pray go on sir. I'm not superstitious, neither am I foolishly incredulous,' and the mild one wiped his forehead, and emptied his tumbler at a gulp.

'Well, as you desire it, I will narrate my story,' said Ponsonby. 'It was exactly three years ago, this very day, that I and my luggage found ourselves in No. Fortytwo, the last room, (so the chambermaid told me,) unlet in the house."

Exactly what she told me -- a cockatrice ! interrupted the mild one.

'I suppose,' continued the pendulum, you are not aware that this is our room.' 'Our room?' said I.

'Yes, mine and the rest of the works .-The man who made us died in this bed, and left it to us as a legacy. You found something rather unpleasant didn't you? 'Yes,' I answered, 'very unpleasant.'

THE BLIND SCULPTOR.

This is a very touching picture which is drawn by a modern traveler, of a blind sculptor whom he fell in with at Innspruck in the Tyrol. His name was Kleinhaus; and this is a brief synopsis of his history: When five years of age he was attacted with the small pox; it effected his eyes, and finally made him entirely blind. fore he had lost his sight, he had often played with these wooden figures which ance I had suffered. As I looked the are so skilfully carved by the inhabitants of Tyrol, and even attempted to handle a knife, and to form a statute himself.

When no longer permitted to behold the light, his thoughts unceasingly turned to head. The clock struck the three quar- so much pleasure, and which he would gladthem between his hands, feel them, and try to console himself for not being able to see, by measuring them with his fingers. by degrees to comprehend. from the touch. the exact proportions of the figure; anatomizing upon wood, marble or bronze, the features of the face and the different parts of the body, and thus to judge of the niceties of a work of art. When he had acquired this skill, he one day asked himself whether he could not succeed in supplying the loss of sight by the keep sense of touch with which he was minutes,' resumed Pensonby, 'when I gifted. His father and mother were both dead ; he found himself alone and destitute, and rather than beg, he resolved to make out through his own exertions, a

His first attempts were very troublesome and very trifling .-Frequently did the unconscious man destroy, by one notch made too deep, a piece of work to which he diligently devoted long days of labor. Such obstacles would have discouraged, any other, but his love for art induced him to persevere. After very many efforts, he at length succeeded in using his chisel with a steady hand; and so carefully he would examine each fold of the drapery, one after, another, and the contour of each limb, that he saw, as it were, by means of his fingers he intended to copy. Thus he proceeded by degrees, until he attained to what seems an almost incredible perfection, for he is now able to engrave produce a perfect resemblance!

He is now seventy years of age, but robust, and works every day, as in his youth. During the course of his career he has sculptured several hundred figures. He lives alone in his humble apartment, and supplies all his wants from the produce of his sculpture He is of a cheerful disposition ; no vain desires agitate him, no ambition for honor or riches trouble the dreams of the blind artist. His mind is wholly occupied with better thoughts. He comanimated, and his soul expands. 'I feel' he says, 'each work of art that is presented about it. 'Good night, sir,' I replied, quaking to me, and each piece that I carve, even mine own eyes.'

What a forcible illustration is this of the beautiful sentence of Sterne :- 'God temfrom the source of all light and life, in the tenderness. This shows a t

In their eagerness and haste to cast odium upon the National Democracy, that the spoils of office may fall into their own honest hands, they hesitate not to acquit the Black Republicans of all blame for the disturbances which have grown out of this exciting subject, and upon the shoulders of the Democratic party they throw the entire guilt. At a Democratic meeting held in the CHARGES OF EXTRAVAGANCE AGAINST THE DEMOCRATIC PAR-TY-THE 'NEW CAPITOL' AND THE ES, &c., &c.

> The Opposition expect to make considerable capital in this canvass out of their charge of extravagance against the Democratic party. They assert in general terms that an astounding amount has been expended under Democratic rule, in these latter days, but when called on for specifications, they are very slow to answer .-There is one subject, however, in connection with the expenditures upon which they delight to dwell, and that is the extension of the National Capitol, and the furnishing of the same. The cost of the building of the New capitol, and of the furniture which has been placed in it, is absolutely shocking to the republican sensibilities of the editors and orators of the Opposition. Upon the subject of looking glasses, hair brushes, etc., they are particularly eloquent in their denunciation. It so happens that in this instance, as in the numerous others in connection with the national expenditures to which we referred a few days since, the assailants are wounded 'by the rebound of their own balls.' a la mode Ben Hardin's adversary. That this is the case, the fair Millard Fillmore, "the model President" of the Opposition, inaugurated the "Capitol Extension" and thus created the necessity for all the subsequent expenditures, including looking glasses and other furniture .-In this same connection we may remark egates to represent this County in said that Fillmore inaugurated, also, the aqueduet for supplying the city of Washington with water, the cost of which is enormous. Secretary of the Interior, under the "model President," recommended the building of houses for the residences of the members of the cabinet. The adoption of this recommendation would have involved an expenditure of at least a million of dollars .-And yet the friends of Mr. Fillmore and his Secretary of the Interior can now speak and write, without blushing, of extravagant Democratic expenditures upon the public buildings.

As combs, hair brushes, et cetera, figure so conspicuously in the campaign locuments of the Opposition, we will state that, according to our information, each of the Committee Rooms is furnished with a hair brush and a comb; whether by law or in accordance with a long standing custom, we are not able to say. Concerning the The following gentlemen were appointed pen knives, scissors, etc., about which so much has been said, we will remark, that under the present law, each member is entitled to $45 worth of stationery for the long session, and $25 for the short; and he takes that stationery out of anything that su ned in stationery, and then, if not so, if select, or in money. If the same law was ber, we take it for granted that he regularly drew the amount to which he was entitled under it. As that estimable and honorable gentleman did not refuse to receive $824 for contesting a seat to which he was not legally entitled, it is hardly to be presumed that he had any constitutional or conscientious scruples about the receipt of $70 per term, to which he was legally entitled.

Yet, he ought to have indignantly refused it, if there be any reason or just; ce in the present clamor of the Opposition The Contingent Fund of the House and two bodies, and we may remark en passant, that Dickens, who is now, and has been Whig. Cullom, the predecessor of the present Clerk of the House, was, and is, a bitter foe to the Democracy. All that the Committees of Finance in the two houses, can do, is to ascertain as nearly as possible the accuracy of their calculations and then make appropriations accordingly. The estimates for the Committee of Ways and Means are furnished by the Secretary of the Treasury; and the estimates of the Contingent Fund necessary for each House are don the idea of carrying the Presidential furnished by its Clerk. It is impossible for the Committee of Ways and Means to try some other plan of operations, tell whether every appropriation is right or advisable. They can only make such an examination as their opportunities will allow. There are Committees on expenditure in each department of the Government, whose business is to ascertain whether the money appropriated is properly applied, and whether the number of officers and amount of expenditures can be reduced, and to report thereon. Yet these committees do not meet to perform their duties, quested to publish the proceedings of this nor have they met for years. They did not meet in Mr. Goggin's time, and there is no evidence to show that he ever attempted to call them together. We think the Opposition have far more to lose than gain by agitating the subject of the extravagant expenditures of the Federal Government. We know they must suffer from it if all the facts of the case are presented.

TALUABLE FARM FOR SALE .-THE subscriber offers for sale his FARM situated in Craven County, on lower Broad and Orchard Creeks, near Neuse River, seven miles from the town of Jack- took the First Premium at the Connecticut State son, containing 2500 acres, more or less, several hundred of which are prime Swamp. Land, about 200 acres cleared, the remainder in woods, which is excellent timler, suitable for building or ship purposes .-There are about 100 acres ditched, deadened, under-bushed and the cord wood cut; a small amount of labor would prepare it for cultivation. There are also two crops of Turpentine Boxes on it. The Land is well adapted to Cotton, Corn. Wheat, Potatoes, &c., and is highly susceptible of improvement. The facilities for shipping are rarely equalled.

The improvements consist of a fine large Dwelling, Kitchen, Smoke-House, Gin-House, Barns, Stables, and Negro Houses sufficient to accommodate Fifty Negroes, together with all other necessary out-buildings, in good order. The Garden and Orchard abound in a great variety of the choicest Fruits, viz: Grapes, Fige, Rasp berries, Strawberries, Cherries, Apples, Pears and Peaches. Oysters and Fish may be taken in abundance from the creek at the back of the garden, and Wild Fowl, in great variety, abound in the vicinity .-There is also a good mill site, with dam already constructed on the place. There is Hive. a good well of water in the yard.

The premises have the reputation of being healthy and the situation is desirable. and my only object in desiring to sell is the fact that I intend to quit farming.

Persons wishing to buy can apply to me on the premises, or to J. Gooding, sr., at THOMAS F. GOODING.

THE RESERVE THE PROPERTY OF TH THE WEEKLY STATES, PRYOR & HEISS. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Subscription price - - - $1 00 per year. With the veiw of securing the largest possible circulation among the masses of the people, the proprietors of The States have determined to reduce the price of the Weekly paper to ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM.

THE STATES will be conducted with an exclusive regard to the principles of the State-rights Democracy, will be independent of factions, and unbiassed by partial interests-in short, will present management. We presume it has given a sufficient exemplification of its principles and objects to dispense with the necessity of any formal professions.

Also, will open 500 prs. Rlankets of the control of the principles and objects to dispense with the necessity of any formal professions.

Located at the Federal Capital, THE STATES has great advantages over other journals in pro-curing important and valuabe information relating to the offairs of government. Its central position also enables it to procure at the earliest moment the latest foreign and dometic news, and in its columns will always be found matters of interest appertaing to Literature, Agriculture, and Commerce
The price of subscription is fixed so low, that it brings the paper within the reach of every person who desires a good and reliable newspaper. We therefore appeal to our Democratic friends throughout the country to aid us in securing The States an extended circulation. To those who will take the trouble of getting us up a club of ten subscribers, at the rate of one DOLLAR PER YEAR for each sul scriber, we will send a copy of the WREKLY STATES for one year

Payments in all cases required in adaance. Current money in the different States received in payment for subscriptions. All letters should be addressed to

A VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE

IN NORFOLK CO., VA. IT lies on the Dismal Swamp Canal, about 7 miles from Deep Creek and 14 from Norfolk. and contains from 1200 to 1500 acres, about 150 to 200 of which are now in arable order, the balance in original forest. The soil is adapted to the production of Indian corn and other crops usually cultivated in that section. About 5 or 600 acres of the tract would make as fine a farm as any in Eastern Virginia; adjoining lands of similar quality unimproved, have produced from 14 to 15 barrels of corn per acre, and the wood and timber on the land 500 " would pay every expen e of clearing, when it 1000 " would be worth $50 per acre. It presents, also, great tacilities for carrying on the wood business. Immense quantities of the best quality could be sold at paying prices at Norfolk or on the Canal bank, along which the and stretches for several miles. The faci ities of water carriage would also render the trucking business profitable. There is a large Juniper swamp on the tract, valuable for its rail and shingle timber. The pasturage and range for Stock is unsurpassed. A free School is within one mile of the great inducements to buyers wholesale and redwelling.
